

T.V. RAMPRASADH

T.V. Ramprasad is one of the prominent Carnatic classical vocalists with over 30 years of performing experience and 25 years of teaching experience. Gifted with a mellow, bass voice capable of a panoramic range, Ramprasad has trained it with infinite patience and practice, and shaped it into a voice that weaves a magical spell of sonic beauty. His captivating voice, clarity in diction and unique style has evoked unqualified approbation of all listeners. He is capable of establishing an instant rapport with listeners and his haunting strains linger in the minds of audiences' world over. He maintains purity of the classical form through discipline, concentration and uncompromising adherence of tradition.

He has had the training under P.S. Narayanaswamy, S. Rajam, Sri R.R. Keshavmurthy. He holds Masters degree in Music and is a qualified lawyer and Cost Accountant who chose music as his profession.

He has composed music for several documentary films, dance productions and has hosted several Carnatic music shows on Television for various channels.

He has given many lecture demonstrations on various topics, conducted music appreciation programmes in many schools and colleges, and has contributed several art related articles for various newspapers and magazines.

Ramprasad's concert tours abroad have taken him to the US, UK, Germany, France, the Netherlands, Austria, Singapore, Malaysia etc. An 'A-grade' All India Radio Artist, his programmes have been broadcast on radio and television in State, Zonal and National networks.

He has been awarded with the titles Asthaana Vidwaan of the Kanchi Kamakoti Peetam, Kanchipuram; Gana Kala Shree from the Karnataka Ganakala Parishath; Naada Vallabha; Gayana Gandharva; Ganakala Visharada and has also received Best Vocalist awardes from Music Academy, Krishna Gana Sabha and Indian Fine Arts Society in successive years.

TVR and his wife Indira Kadambi, a senior Bharathanatyam danceuse, have established eAmbalam, the World's first Online College of Arts, which is delivering performing arts and wellness education to hundreds of students across the world.